- In the twelfth chapter of her life story entitled 'Nehru's nieces' that we come across Paridit Nehru as a 'Mamu' of young Taru. Here's an author who is a pampered niece of the first prime-minister of India.
- She lived with her uncle Pundit Jawaharlal Nehru when he was the prime minister of India. She always had a discussion about a variety of the books with her mamu. She always listened to her mamu's speeches when she was just ten years old. All important points she used to note down in a book. She never forgot the speech throughout her life. Even after going back to Newyork she recollected the speech.
- The speech was: "Wherever in this wide world there goes an Indian, there goes a piece of India with him and he may not forget this fact or ignore it. It lies within his power to some extent, to bring credit or discredit to his country, honour or dishonour..."
- Thus, her mamu's words were not only inscribed in Sahgal's notebook but also in her heart. Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru never turned out to be only a prime minister of India for his nieces.
- Nayantara Sahgal was never treated as a child and her ideas were equally respected. She always admired him and considered as an ideal person who was always ready to serve the country.
- The most striking feature of this autobiography is the relationship between Nayantara Sahgal's father with his children and the relationship of Nehru with his nieces. Sahgal was much influenced by her mamu. She viewed India's freedom through his eyes.

PRISON AND CHOCOLATE CAKE'S STORY

A dramatic portrait of the spirit of sacrifice that carried India through the years of the struggle for independence, this evocative memoir of an unusual childhood ends with the assassination of Mahatma Gandhi in 1948. Nayantara Sahgal describes what it was like growing up in Anand Bhavan, Allahabad, the home of her parents shared with her maternal uncle, Jawarlal Nehru, during the years when Gandhi was leading the movement for independence. It describes in loving detail the lives of a family for whom the country's fight for freedom was more important than anything else, certainly coming before comfort and riches. The book is particularly delightful for its picture of Nehru who springs from these pages as a man of friendly humanity and a joy in life that made him a beloved uncle, yet with an inborn greatness that inspired awe and admiration in the little girl who played with him.

Padmashri Nirmohi ji felicitated by Prof. Aima

Carrying forward the ongoing celebrations of the glorious history of commemorating the 75 years of Independence of progressive India, a national level student-scholar seminar on “ Unsung Indian women Freedom fighters: Historical, Cultural and Literary Refractions”, organised by Department of English, Central University of Jammu was inaugurated in the university campus on 22 November, 2021 by the Vice Chancellor, Prof. Ashok Aima and Padmashri Shiv Nirmohi in the Brigadier Rajinder Singh auditorium. The seminar planned in a blended mode was also joined by Prof. Neeraja Gupta, Vice Chancellor, Sanchi University of Buddhist-Indic Studies, who highlighted the significance and timeliness of the theme of the seminar particularly the cultural and literary perspective of unsung women freedom fighters as narratives pertaining freedom struggle get limited only to historical narratives. In her address, Prof. Neeraja underscored how dating for freedom movement needs to be deliberated with special thrust on women like Jhalkari and many others in her women contingent who fought during the First War of Independence. In the Inaugural address, Prof. Aima said that seminars on such themes related to representations, adaptations pertaining our culture and heritage is imperative and the switch over from virtual to physical mode is a welcome move. Speaking on the occasion, Prof. Rasal Singh, Dean, School of Languages threw light on documenting the contributions of unsung freedom fighters and expressed hope that Department of English will work in the same direction with gusto.

Padmashri Shiv Nirmohi, an eminent litterateur, historian and icon of Dogra pride was felicitated by Prof. Aima in the same function. Speaking on his literary journey, Padmashri Nirmohi advised younger generation to read, travel and participate in seminars to expand horizons of learning. Shedding light on the strength and exemplary courage of Duggar women, Padmashri Nirmohi referred to the resilience and courage of Naraatu Devi, whom Dinu Bhai Pant has glorified in his poetry as “ Sherni Naraatu”. Earlier, welcoming the guests, Dr. Vandana Sharma, Head, Department of English and convener of the seminar said that in sync with the aim of the semina,r a good number of papers exploring various forms of narratives related to lost narratives of women freedom fighters hint at gaps in history and raises the question related male-centric post 1947 historical records. Prof. Kalpana Purohit, Head Department of English, Jai Narayan Vyas University, Jodhpur in her keynote address traced the trajectory of freedom struggle and women’s role in it with special emphasis on Rajasthan. Another noted speaker of the seminar was Prof. Neeraja Matto, Kashmiri writer and scholar eminent for her research in the Kashmiri narratives and story telling. Dr. Parveen Kumari proposed vote of thanks.
