Learning Material

Sigmund Freud's psychoanalytic theory posits that human behavior is driven by unconscious desires, memories, and conflicts, primarily structured around the interaction of the id, ego, and superego.

ID:

Resides completely at the unconscious level.

Acts under the pleasure principle immediate gratification, not willing to compromise, generates all of the personality's energy

SUPEREGO

The moralist and idealistic part of the personality

Resides in preconscious

Operate on "ideal principle"

Begins forming at 4-5yrs of age

Essential your "conscience"

EGO

Resides in all levels of awareness

Operate under "reality principle"

Attempts negotiation between id and superego to satisfy both realistically

Psychosexual Development

Stages of development in which conflict over ID's impulses plays out

Ego must control these impulses

If not resolved, psychological issues can emerge later in life

A child at a given stage of development has certain needs and demands either frustration or overindulgence results in fixation, where characterized the stage one is fixation in which dominate and affect his adult personality.

1 Oral stage(birth-18 months): erogenous zone is the mouth and sucking and biting lead to satisfaction.

Frustration: pessimism, envy, suspicion and sarcasm

Overindulgence: optimistic, gullible and is full of admiration for others around him

Primary conflict: weaning deprives the child of the sensory pleasures of nursing and of the psychological pleasure of being cared for, mothered

2 Anal stage(18-36months): obsession with the erogenous zone of the anus and with the retention or expulsion of the feces-conflict with parents/societal pressure

Anal explosive character: messy, disorganized, reckless, careless, and defiant.

Anal retentive

character: neat, precise, orderly, careful, stingy, withholding, obstinate, meticulous, and passive-aggressive

The resolution of the Anal stage permanently affect the individual propensities to possession and attitudes towards authority.

3 Phallic stage:(3-6yrs):The Phallic stage is the setting for the greatest,most crucial sexual conflict in Freud's model of development.In this stage,the child's erogenous zone is the genital region.

4 Latency period:a period in which the sexual drive lies dormant.During the Latency period, children pour this depressed libidinal energy into asexual pursuits such as school,aesthetics, and same-sex friendship.

5 Genital stage:child's energy once again focuses on his genitals,interest turn to heterosexual relationship.The less energy the child has left invested in unresolved psychosexual development,the greater his capacity will be to develop normal relationships with the opposite sex.
